

SETTLEMENT WILL SOON HAVE MOVING PICTURES

Superintendent Jack McVeigh of the Molokai Settlement is in town and has practically closed a deal for a moving-picture machine and a supply of films for the Settlement. A. Gartley is advising Mr. McVeigh concerning electric lights for the machine, and R. K. Bonine is giving expert advice on how to set up and run the apparatus.

It has been about decided to fix up a place for giving the moving-picture exhibitions at the Settlement out of doors, there being no suitable hall there. It is probable that a shelter for the machine will be built with a removable front, while the screen will be placed also under a shelter to protect it from the weather. Benches for the people will be built where a good view of the pictures can be obtained.

When everything is ready it is probable that exhibitions will be given once a week, new film being secured as often as practicable. At the present time there is a large quantity of film obtainable in Honolulu, somewhat scratched and shopworn, but of a variety of subjects that should afford immense delight to the people of the Settlement. The majority at Kalapapa and Kalawao have never seen a moving-picture show and the first few exhibitions will be wonderful affairs to them.

The amount of money now in the moving-picture fund is sufficient to buy a machine and a fair supply of film.

A NOTED ARMY LEADER.

Colonel Charles Miles who is now visiting Hawaii is one of the most distinguished Salvation Army leaders in America having climbed up to the position of third officer in the entire United States. At one time he commanded the Department of the West in Chicago. He has been personal secretary to General Booth, has twice seen extensive service in South Africa, has represented the cause in scores of large churches and is reputed a most effective speaker. This evening he will address Central Union Church on the theme, "Who Cares, or Practical Philanthropy." Colonel Miles will tell the story of the remarkable industrial work that has made the Army one of the most successful agencies in combating crime and poverty which the world has ever known. Honolulu people will be glad to have an opportunity to obtain first hand knowledge of this phase of Army work from such an expert as Colonel Miles.

CHINESE WIRELESS INVENTION.

According to the Far Eastern Review, a Chinese gentleman named Hu Chuen has obtained a patent on an improved method of wireless telegraphy, simplifying the methods hitherto in use. The system has been recommended by Chinese authorities for the reason that it makes use only of domestic Chinese materials of lower cost than imported articles, and it is also simpler to operate. At the test of the equipment at Canton it was pronounced a success. Detailed information as to the workings of the new system, however, are not as yet at hand.—Scientific American.

his employer for investment; but the minute che-fa and paikan rear their tempting crests, the cook begins to drawn down. For over a year after Iaukea became Sheriff, the deposit account grew; but five days after Chief of Detectives Taylor left for the Coast—a fateful trip, that, in many ways—the cook asked for his money. Now, with Taylor out for good, he deposits nothing; and anyone who will visit Chinatown with an insider will know the reason why. Gambling there is at high tide; and though there are many arrests of the small fry the big ones are doing business like so many water-wheels in a mill-race.

When I go out of the tailor business, I am going to start a bakeshop. I shall build a stone oven and get a Portuguese woman to make bread. Fortunate among men is he who knows where to buy one of those whopping big and marvellously good ten-cent loaves the Lusitanian matrons bake. There isn't a loaf in any store to compare with it; there are not many to compare with it in private ovens. Next I shall send over to San Francisco and get someone to come here and make those long, slender French loaves, which are nearly all crisp-crust and which one can make a breakfast on. Hot sheet bread an inch and a half thick is also a luxury that will make my shop famous. German rye, fine and black, and Boston brown bread may be counted on, too. In back of the shop, somewhere, will be a scrupulously clean restaurant where one can get bread and Jersey milk for lunch; perhaps some cottage cheese, honey in the comb and real buckwheat cakes on the side. There will also be rusk and milk, which is a luxury almost unknown in Honolulu. I shall take some bread thirty-six hours old, dry and brittle. This I shall put under a common kitchen roller and reduce to crumbs. These crumbs will be made to order so they can't gather any humidity before reaching the table. On the table, which will be covered with a shining cloth, I shall put a few flowers, a large thin china bowl filled with Jersey milk freshly dipped from a cold storage tin; a real silver spoon, a bowl of crumbs to use in the milk instead of bread; and then leave the customer to eat his fill. He will find that the crumbs swell in the milk yet retain a crispness and a nutty flavor which makes them a gastronomic luxury. There will be other things to eat, but a generous bowl of rusk and milk is enough for anybody.

Let me tell you about another simple dish, easy to digest and a proved strength-builder. Take a bowl of hot boiled rice, add two raw, fresh eggs, pepper and salt to taste and moisten with cream or milk. After eating a bowl of that, you will feel all right until dinner time, no matter what hard work you may do. This dainty can also be had at my bakeshop restaurant.

Sometimes the files by mail contain news items we expected by cable. Sometimes they explain why the cable failed, as witness the following from the San Francisco Investigator of October 26:

"In casting about for interesting news items (furnished by us exclusively) our reporter dropped into the Associated Press office just as the most important items of world news were being prepared for Honolulu, for it is by the discriminating and brainy work of these young men that far-off point is kept in touch with the momentous events which, woven into the piece, make history.

"Here's an item about Emperor William's attitude on the Balkan question. 'All right—that goes.'

"Here's a good account of Billy Galoot's gamecock winning his first fight. Thousand present; great excitement. 'That so! That's important. I have followed the history of that bird from the first, though I always doubted his paternity.'

"Well, we mustn't fail to wire that!' So it was filed with 'Accepted Dispatches.'

"Here's something about Rev. Dr. Bingham dying in a Baltimore hospital. The illustrious translator of the Bible into the Gilbert Island language; a noted missionary, etc., etc.'

"I never could see why these doctors want to get a 'reverend' posted on their names! Who is Dr. Bingham, anyway? I never heard of him or the Gilbert Islands. Let's see, that's an island near the west coast of Africa, isn't it? Guess those Honolulu chaps don't know who he is or why he translated the Bible, and they will thank us for sending only important news anyway.' Throw the item in the waste basket.

"Hello! Here's an important bit of news! [Reads.] 'Mrs. Elmira Florence Rosy de Jones, the noted and beautiful ballet dancer and actress, formerly of the Tony Pastor company, has filed a libel for divorce against her husband, Jack Bobby de Jones, the well known and popular bruiser. It appears that he left home asking her to await his return, as he had an important meeting with a committee of the Society to Promote Moral Virtue. Less than half an hour after, while walking in the Bowers with a notorious woman, whose name we suppress in the interests of public morality, he met Mrs. E. F. R. de Jones hanging on the arm of a well known man about town. The surprise was so great that Mr. de Jones so far forgot himself as to paste his beautiful wife, which was followed by a copious flow of the claret, and a row ensued. Sensational developments are promised.'

"Oh, I know them both! Charming little lady! Don't fail to cable that to Honolulu.' * * * * And so, brethren, this is why Honolulu did not know of Dr. Bingham's death till the slow mail brought the sad news.

CAPTAIN GREGORY—It was the votes we brought in on the Kinau that elected Joe Fern the first Mayor of Honolulu.

JOEL C. COHEN—Since I made public my views on the land and taxation question I have been besieged by people who want to tell me how mistaken I am. They haven't proved it to me yet.

CHARLEY CHILLINGWORTH—We hear that there were seven votes thrown out for John Lane at Punuluu because the voter had marked too many deputy sheriffs. We can't get anyone who will swear to this though and give us a chance for a recount.

FRED CARTER—With the one exception of that insidious heart worm, there is nothing that threatens dog life in these Islands, and there is no reason why this should not make an excellent place for the encouragement of the finer breeds. If properly attended to, dogs are very healthy here, but they would be all the better off if some expert with time to spare would search for a real remedy for the heart worm.

JOHN CATTON—If Punahou had only been content to do a trifle more passing and feed their ends so that they could get away with a clear run, they would have made a much better showing against the High School. I feel firmly convinced that an interpolation of a little Rugby in an end run with the interference breaking up to drop back and take a pass when the runner is tackled, would prove an invincible play in the intercollegiate game.

L. C. KEATING—I have been very much impressed with the prevalence of the sporting spirit in Honolulu. I noticed some dark-hued youngsters playing baseball on a bare lot today. Not one of them was taller than the bat he wielded, and yet they played a game that would put to shame the best efforts of the average school kid on the mainland. Why not get up an All-Hawaiian team to tour the States? I feel sure that the venture would be a great success.

DEMOCRATS CELEBRATE

ceded by a procession of the candidates, headed by the Hawaiian band, around town. The candidates met at the party headquarters, Waverley Hall, soon after 7 o'clock. The Hawaiian band, under Captain Berger, joined them on Bethel street. With the band in a tally-ho and the candidates and officials-elect in automobiles, the procession moved to King street and thence to Bishop and Hotel, and then to Aala Park. There was a crowd at the park to receive them, and the affair took on the aspect of a great celebration.

Of course, there was speech-making. All of the victorious candidates, and some who were not, expressed their thanks to the voters, renewed their promises to support the principles of the party platform, and work for the public good. Edward Ingham presided and made a very happy speech in opening the meeting, and other pleasant little speeches, in introducing the various candidates, successful and otherwise.

W. A. Kinney went most carefully and comprehensively into the results and meaning of the election. L. L. McCandless spoke particularly of the congressional fight. Frank Harvey addressed the Home Rulers particularly, telling them that in voting for their candidates they were helping Republicans, while their real interests and instincts were with the Democratic party. Jarrett was vociferously greeted and made a frank, manly, sincere speech of thanks.

HAWAII MIGHT SECURE TRADE

were given very great opportunities to study industrial and commercial conditions in the great trade and industrial centers of Japan.

The Japanese government and the Japanese people were unremitting in their attentions and their courtesies. No nation could have entertained its guests with greater distinction and taste. It was stated that the entertainments given in behalf of the officers and men of the American fleet were by far the most splendid and brilliant ever seen in the Orient.

The Pacific Coast business men and the American Commissioners found a great deal to interest them, not only in looking over actual conditions in Japan, but in studying their system of trade, industrial and technical schools and in investigating, as far as they could in the time allotted them, the possibilities of Japan as a manufacturing nation in the near future.

At a banquet given by the American Commissioners General in honor of the Marquis Katsura and the Minister of Commerce and Agriculture, the Prime Minister stated very impressively that henceforth it would be the work of the Japanese Government to concentrate its energies on the development of the industrial and commercial potentialities of the country.

The Prime Minister further observed that all of the natural resources of the nation would be developed to their utmost, and for the future Japan would lay much more stress upon the exploitation of her manufacturing, commercial and shipping activities than upon the further immediate development of her army and navy.

These words were naturally interpreted to mean that it is the purpose of the Japanese Government in the first place to get the most out of agriculture, not only in Japan, but in Formosa and in Korea, and in the next place, to convert Japan, as far as possible, into a great workshop teeming with activity. The regions about Osaka and Nagoya seem specially marked for exploitation along these lines.

Asked about the market for Hawaiian products in the East, Mr. Loomis said that there was unquestionably an excellent opening for the sale, in a large way, of the very superior pineapples of the Hawaiian Islands. He considers the Hawaiian pineapple the most delicious in the world and thinks that if proper skill in the introduction of it and due care as regards packing and shipping are exercised, that large sale could be found, in both China and Japan, for pineapples and other fruit products of the Hawaiian Islands.

"There is a great complaint," said Mr. Loomis, "in all the great Oriental commercial centers, such as Shanghai, Canton and Hongkong, in respect to the careless and wholly unsatisfactory manner in which American dried fruits, preserved fruits, crackers and such like articles are packed and shipped. Prunes, raisins and citron from the Pacific Coast in ninety shipments out of a hundred arrive there in a mouldy, wormy condition. This is due to the fact that they are not properly treated before they are shipped, and they are sent out in wooden boxes. The same may be said of various kinds of cakes and crackers which are sent to that market.

"There is a very large demand, and the demand could be enormously increased, for such fruit products of this nature, but to satisfy the demand, the goods must be not only packed in small airtight tins, but they must be presented in a tasteful and agreeable manner.

"Hawaiian producers who think of entering the Oriental markets would do well to bear these suggestions firmly in mind, and to address themselves particularly to the needs and requirements of the Chinese market, never failing to remember that in dealing with the Chinese, superior quality; secure, scientific and tasteful packing; packages of moderate size and uniformity in quality are the elements which will be insisted upon.

"The Chinese market is one worthy of the careful consideration of every honest man who has anything to sell.

WILDER MAKES GOOD TAX COLLECTIONS

The unpenalized tax collections for the second period closed last night at 10 o'clock with collections so far this year of $675,729.19, as against collections from January 1 to November 30, 1907 of $647,289.96.

The collections this year have therefore 750.62, making a total for the first fourteen days of November of $255,043.92 as against $221,511.59 for the first fifteen days of November, 1907.

The collection this year have therefore greatly exceeded those of last year. Tax Collector C. T. Wilder feels very much gratified with the showing made. Already this year there have been more than $28,000 more collected than was collected last year up to the end of November.

HACK AND PLATEGLASS SMASHED

Hack 274, driverless, came dashing down Fort street at half past eleven last night, narrowly missing a Punahou car, at the corner of King and coming up with a smash against the telegraph pole on E. O. Hall & Son's corner. When the hack stopped so suddenly the horse kept on going, jerking out of the harness and smashing its head through one of Hall's plateglass windows. The hack is a wreck, the window is severely punctured, but, peculiar to say, the horse escaped without any particular injury. The outfit belongs to one of the Japanese drivers from the Beretania avenue hack stand.
